DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1-68 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Takriti et al. (US 5974403).

Takriti et al. disclose a method, computer program product, and computer system for forecasting a retail price of electricity for an end user customer in a deregulated market by performing a digital simulation of marginal clearing prices and customer load, determining a risk premium to be added to the forecasted relate price based on an expected wholesale price volatility and an expected variability of customer load, performing supply price analysis and presenting the results of the supply price analysis to the customer but does not disclose digitally simulating hourly load (col 7-9 and figures 5, 7, and table 2). Examiner takes official notice that it is well know in the art to forecast by an hourly method with the design choice being dependent on the needs of the forecasting. It is well known to use hourly customer load to determine when usage peaks occur so to give discounted prices to customers who wait to 'off peak' hours to increase there energy use. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use hourly customer load number to analyze and forecast a retail price of electricity as in Takriti et al. because it would enable the forecast to better predict peak hours of usage.

Examiner's Note
